Re: Volume 41, Number 3 (May, 1984), pp. 291-308.

In the article, "Interresponse-time punishment: A basis for shock-maintained behavior," by Gregory Galbicka and John R. Platt, on page 301, Col. 1, line 30, an error occurred in the sentence beginning, "Research on punishment has demonstrated the degree of response suppression to be inversely related to punishment probability . . ." The word "inversely" should be changed to "directly," so that the sentence reads, "Research on punishment has demonstrated the degree of response suppression to be directly related to punishment probability . . ."
