Corrections

Visual Evoked Response in Diagnosis of Multiple Sclerosis

In the paper on Visual Evoked Response in Diagnosis of Multiple Sclerosis (15 December, p. 661) the sentence in the tenth line of the Summary beginning "Of 51 patients with delayed responses . . ." should have read: "Of the 51 patients with multiple sclerosis, 23 had normal discs." The fourth sentence in the first paragraph under Method should have read: "In the present study 25 patients were tested only by the older method, 32 by both methods, and 16 only by the new method."
