Distinction Award Committee's Vice-chairman

Sir David Trench, until recently Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Hong Kong, has been appointed as the lay member and vice-chairman of the Advisory Committee on Distinction Awards. The largely professional committee, whose chairman is Sir Hector MacLennan, advises the Health Ministers on the allocation of awards. Since the distinction award system was instituted in 1948 it has been the practice to appoint a distinguished layman as vice-chairman.

Corrections

Hazards of Aquatics

The Royal Navy Superintendent of Diving is always available to inform doctors of the nearest available treatment centre for cases of decompression sickness, pulmonary barotrauma, or accidental air embolism, and to put the doctors in communication with the naval specialists. The telephone number to be used is 075-22351. The inquirer should ask for "The Superintendent of Diving (Extension 872375)" or, outside working hours, "The Duty Lieutenant Commander, H.M.S. Vernon (Extension 872588)." This corrects the statement in the report of the Annual Meeting (5 August, p. 345).

Further Observations on the Pathogenesis of Acne

In the article by Dr. J. A. Cotterill and his colleagues (19 August, p. 444) the incorrect figure was printed above the legend for Figure 1. We very much regret this error and print below the figure which should have appeared.

Twins and Cancer

Dr. R. A. Strang informs us that Miss Margaret Hoare (26 August, p. 530) is correct in her criticism of his letter on the incidence of cancer in twins (29 July, p. 294). The estimated number of pairs of twins should have been 214, not 107, so that the estimated increase in cancer in the twins was fourfold, not sixteenfold. Dr. Strang informed us of this mistake shortly after his letter was printed, but owing to an error on our part, for which we apologize, his correction was not published.
