Erratum to: Intellectual disability health content within medical curriculum: an audit of what our future doctors are taught

Julian N. Trollor^{1*}, Beth Ruffell¹, Jane Tracy^{2,3}, Jennifer J. Torr^{2,3}, Seeta Durvasula⁴, Teresa Iacono⁵, Claire Eagleson¹ and Nicolas Lennox⁶

Erratum

After publication of the original article [1], the authors found two errors within the Results section of the Abstract. Details are as follows:

- 1) In the line 'Elective content varies markedly across universities (1 to 122 h)', the number "122" should be "222".
- 2) In the line 'In Australia, medical school curricula contain a median of 2.55 h of compulsory intellectual disability content', there should be a word "units" inserted between "curricula" and "contain". The full corrected sentence should read: 'In Australia, medical school curricula units contain a median of 2.55 h of compulsory intellectual disability content'.
