Correction to: Protecting Medical Trainees on the COVID-19 Frontlines Saves Us All

In the article by Harrington et al, "Protecting Medical Trainees on the COVID-19 Frontlines Saves Us All," which published ahead of print on April 6, 2020, and appears in the May 5, 2020, issue of the journal (Circulation. 2020;141:e775-e777. doi: 10.1161/CIRCULATIONAHA.120.047454), a correction is needed.

It has come to the authors' attention that there are 6 medical schools in Ireland, but only 1 Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. Thus, a correction is needed in the following sentence:

Similarly, the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland abruptly announced final exams would be administered 6 weeks sooner to accelerate graduation at its 6 medical schools and dispatch residents to the health service by April, according to The Irish Times.

It has been updated to read:

Similarly, the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland abruptly announced final exams would be administered 6 weeks sooner to accelerate graduation at its medical school and dispatch residents to the health service by April, according to The Irish Times.

The correction has been made in the print and online versions of the article, which are available at <https://www.ahajournals.org/doi/abs/10.1161/CIRCULATIONAHA.120.047454>.
