

Correction

Correction to “Reasons for cannabis use during pregnancy and lactation: a qualitative study”

CMAJ has been made aware of an omission in a Research article published Dec. 20, 2021.<sup>1</sup>

The competing interest statement should have mentioned that 1 author, Janelle Panday, has been employed as a freelance research coordinator by Avail Cannabis Clinics, a privately owned network of medical clinics, since May 2021, after her involvement in data collection for this study. She is compensated hourly for this work, which involves preparing and submitting ethics applications, and does not have any other financial interests related to Avail or its research. CMAJ thanks the study authors for reporting this omission as soon as they became aware of it.

The competing interests statement has been updated at cmaj.ca.

■ Cite as: CMAJ 2022 March 7;194:E342.
doi: 10.1503/cmaj.220230

Reference

1. Vanstone M, Taneja S, Popoola A, et al. Reasons for cannabis use during pregnancy and lactation: a qualitative study. CMAJ 2021;193:E1906-14.