

External drivers index (EDI): Used to assess the social, economic, cultural and other factors affecting One Health development, including the earth system, economic system, technological system, sociological system and institutional system

Intrinsic drivers index (IDI): Formed to assess One Health practice at the interfaces of human health, animal health and environment health

Core drivers index (CDI): Created to evaluate One Health implementation in the management of core scientific fields, including emerging zoonotic infectious diseases, food security, antimicrobial resistance (AMR), climate change and governance