

Figure S1: The probability of detecting one or more positive S. aureus isolate from fish samples (y axis), given differences in the true prevalence (x axis). The coloured lines correspond to different numbers of fish samples. For example, 20 fish samples gives a 95% chance of detecting one or more positive S. aureus isolate if the true prevalence is around 0.14.