The above is just one example.

In parallel style training, you will work in the outpatient department and on the hospital ward at the same time over the course of a month.

In block style training, you will only work in the outpatient department for a month. In the month you work on the hospital ward, you will only work on the hospital ward.

In mixed style training, there are months where you will work in the outpatient department and on the hospital ward at the same time over the course of a month, as in parallel training, and months where you will only work in the outpatient department, as in block training.
