

Wounding induces PMH2 promoter activity. Rosette leaves were wounded with a pin (left) and a scissor (right), removed from the plant and stained. Pronounced staining is seen at the wounding sites including the detachment site. Staining seems to be particularly intensive in vascular bundles.

Matthes et al., Supplementary Figure 2