

Supplementary Figure S1: A test phylogeny with 5 leaves which has been used for the first test of the MCML algorithm. The branch length is proportional to the transversions frequencies, which have been used to generate synthetic sequence alignments (see also Table S1).