

Additional Figure A3 - Within the core genome of Haemophilus influenzae the USS-proximal regions accumulate more substitutions. The black line represents the percent identity for regions surrounding all exactly conserved DUS in the multiple alignment. The red line corresponds to the percent identity for regions surrounding randomly selected DUS-less sites in the multiple alignment.