

Additional file 1: Flow chart of identification strategy

This flow chart illustrates the method used to identify potential examples of gene pairs that have undergone concerted evolution in at least two exons and their intervening intron since at least the human-mouse divergence. The flow chart also outlines the filtering steps utilized to create a potential concerted evolution dataset that was then manually curated to identify the three gene pair examples presented.