Figure S6. Determination of correction constant (f). The left panel shows the relationship between the technical correlation value and f. Correlation is best when f >=0.7. The right panel displays the correlation between transformed data using correction constant L and the raw spectral count data after protein length normalization.