
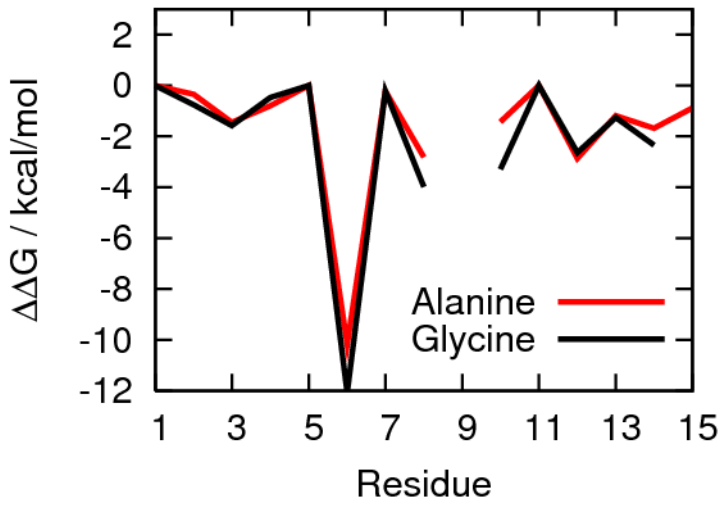

Figure S10. Comparison between computational glycine scan and computational alanine scan of the RAD51-BRC4A interface. The differences between the two methods are small but may be significant around the hotspot region.