

Supplementary Figure 2: Poisson Probability Density Function

$\langle x \rangle$ depicts the value for the occurrence of pentamers, which is theoretically to be expected according to a binomial fit to the observed data. x is the experimentally observed number of pentamers. The curve gives the probability to observe x pentamers. For all experimental conditions, x was found in the lower tail of the Poisson distribution.