

Discrepant effects of human interferon-gamma on clinical and immunological disease parameters in a novel marmoset model for multiple sclerosis

Journal of Neuroimmune Pharmacology

S. Anwar Jagessar^{1,5}, Bruno Gran², Nicole Heijmans¹, Jan Bauer³, Jon D Laman^{4,5}, Bert A. 't Hart^{1,4,5} and Cris S. Constantinescu²

¹Department Immunobiology, Biomedical Primate Research Centre, Rijswijk – The Netherlands, ²Academic Division of Clinical Neurology, University of Nottingham, United Kingdom, ³Department of Neuroimmunology, Medical University Vienna, Center for Brain Research, Vienna, Austria, ⁴Department Immunology, Erasmus Medical Center, Rotterdam, The Netherlands, ⁵ErasMS Center for Translational research into MS, The Netherlands

Address correspondence to:

Prof. dr. Bert A. 't Hart

e-mail: hart@bprc.nl

Supplemental. Figure 1 rhIFN γ cross-reactivity to marmoset

