

Supplmental Figure S1. Rarefaction curves of (A) 16S rRNA gene pyrosequences for July 2010 microbial mat and sediment samples, and (B) 16S rRNA pyrosequences from October 2010 samples, and (C) soxB gene clones from all samples taken from Rattlesnake Spring, Oklahoma.

Headd and Engel “Distribution of sulfur oxidation genes from variable geochemical conditions in a terrestrial sulfidic spring reveals probable differences in metabolic enzyme structure and function” Applied and Environmental Microbiology.