

S Figure 4. Relationship between peaks of high predicted intrinsic curvature and chromosome length.

A. The number of IC peaks greater than 9 degrees per helical turn in each chromosome was plotted against the chromosome length. B. The average frequency of IC peaks greater than 9 degrees per helical turn (calculated as the chromosome length divided by the absolute number of peaks) is plotted against chromosome number.