

Hines, <http://www.jgp.org/cgi/content/full/jgp.201310988/DC1>

A TXT file contains functions written in R that can be used to implement the methods described in the Results and discussion.

A separate PDF file provides a walk-through for the use of the R language and the analysis functions contained in the TXT file.

A CSV file contains simulated data in a comma-separated format; it is used to illustrate how to import and analyze data using the methods contained in the TXT file.