

Access of primary and secondary literature by health personnel in an academic health center: implications for open access

Lauren A. Maggio, MS(LIS); Ryan M. Steinberg, MSI; Laura Moorhead, MS; Bridget O'Brien, PhD; John Willinsky, PhD

Table 4

Most common publication types of full-text views during 2011

Addresses
Autobiography
Bibliography
Biography
Case reports
Classical article
Clinical conference
Clinical trial
Clinical trial, phase I
Clinical trial, phase II
Clinical trial, phase III
Clinical trial, phase IV
Comment
Comparative study
Congresses
Consensus development conference
Consensus development conference, National Institutes of Health (NIH)
Controlled clinical trial
Corrected and republished article
Duplicate publication
Editorial
English abstract
Evaluation studies
Guideline
Historical article
In vitro
Interactive tutorial
Interview
Introductory journal article
Journal article
Lectures
Legal cases
Letter
Meta-analysis
Multicenter study
News
Newspaper article
Overall
Patient education handout
Portraits
Practice guideline

Randomized controlled trial
Research support, American Recovery and Reinvestment Act
Research support, NIH, extramural
Research support, NIH, intramural
Research support, non-US government
Research support, US government, public health service (PHS)
Research support, US government, non-PHS
Retracted publication
Retraction of publication
Review
Technical report
Twin study
Validation studies
Video-audio media
Webcasts
