

DEVELOPMENTAL BIOLOGY

Nicotinic AChR pools

This fluorescence microscopy image shows several large, irregularly shaped cell clusters or pools. The cells within these pools are stained with multiple fluorescent dyes, resulting in a complex, multi-colored appearance with prominent purple, green, and red signals. The background is dark, which makes the brightly stained cells stand out. The overall structure of the pools is somewhat interconnected and irregular.