

Flow cytometric studies showed that the human lymphocytes recovered from mouse spleens express the amount of Tax protein after short-term (16 h) cultivation ex vivo, indicating that the neutralizing anti-Env Ab (clone LAT-27) injection once after PBMC transplantation did not block the in vivo transmission of HTLV-1.