

S1 Fig. Chronic increase in blood flow in vivo: scheme depicting the surgical procedure applied to the mesenteric arteries in order to increase locally blood flow in one artery (high flow: HF) after ligation of second order mesenteric arteries as shown by the red arrows (L). Arteries located at distance were used as control arteries (normal flow: NF).