Figure S2. Vulnerability curves for nine individual trees of Callitris tuberculata. Each point represents mean value of percent loss of hydraulic conductance over at least three measurments of hydraulic conductance (bars represent ± standard error). Lines represent the Pammenter model fit to each individual curve, and dashed lines show were the model was expanded beyond experimental data.