

Supporting Information

For

Competition between Hydrogen Evolution and Carbon Dioxide Reduction on Copper Electrodes in Mildly Acidic Media

Hideshi Ooka,^{1,2} Marta C. Figueiredo,³ Marc T.M. Koper^{3}*

1 Department of Applied Chemistry, The University of Tokyo, 7-3-1, Hongo, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo, 113-8656, Japan

2 Center for Sustainable Resource Science, RIKEN, 2-1, Hirosawa, Wako, Saitama, 351-0198, Japan

3 Leiden Institute of Chemistry, Leiden University, 2300 RA, Leiden, The Netherlands

Corresponding Author

*m.koper@lic.leidenuniv.nl

Figure S1: FTIR spectra of the copper electrode showing the wavenumber region for bicarbonate.

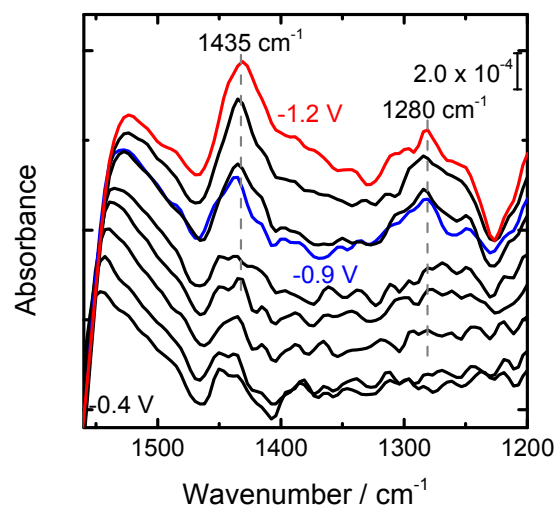

Figure S1. FTIR spectra showing the region for bicarbonate/carbonate vibrations. The spectra were recorded in the same experiment of Figure 4.