

Action Categorization in Rhesus Monkeys: discrimination of grasping from non-grasping manual motor acts.

Koen Nelissen^{1,*} and Wim Vanduffel^{1,2}

¹Laboratory for Neuro- & Psychophysiology, Department of Neurosciences, KU Leuven, Leuven, 3000, Belgium.

²Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Athinoula A. Martino's Center for Biomedical Imaging, Charlestown, Massachusetts, 02129, USA.

*corresponding author:

Koen Nelissen

Laboratory for Neuro- & Psychophysiology

Department of Neurosciences, KU Leuven

Herestraat 49, 3000 Leuven, Belgium.

Email: koen.nelissen@kuleuven.be

Phone: ++32-016-330208

Supplementary material

Supplementary Video S1: Grasping motor act.

Supplementary Video S2: Finger touch front motor act.

Supplementary Video S3: Mimicked grasp motor act.

Supplementary Video S4: Fist touch motor act.

Supplementary Video S5: Finger touch side motor act.

Supplementary Video S6: Monkey using pliers.