

S2 Fig. Potential effect of different climate change scenarios (A2a and B2a) on changes in future species richness (using binary species distributions and assuming unlimited dispersal); maps created as differences between future and current species richness maps (presented in Fig 2). Red means increasing future species richness, and blue means declining future species richness.