Yes, certainly we can do that. I have CC'd the co-authors, Erik and Peter, for them to fill in and confirm.

This is my understanding how to proceed, but please let me know if this is incorrect.

Appendix C:

My decision aid "SynDA" is not yet published, but is copyrighted.

So it should say "Reproduced with permission of Marc Probst. ©2016 Mount Sinai School of Medicine."

Appendix B:

For the AF decision aid, it is copyrighted by Mayo

So it should say "Reproduced with permission of Peter Noseworthy. © 1998-2017 Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research."

Appendix B:

For the Chest Pain decision aid, it is copyrighted by Mayo

So it should say "Reproduced with permission of Erik Hess. © [Dates, Erik?] Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research."

Thanks in advance,

-Marc

Dear Dr Probst,

See e-mail exchange below concerning permission for your supplementary figures.

Can you provide an e-mail or formal paperwork?

Thanks in advance,
Jennifer

That would be preferable, even if it were just an email from the authors saying they are reusing their own figures which is allowed by that journal. We still need to have the line that says "Reproduced with permission of xxx". If I don't see any permission paperwork, I'll request it from the author, so this saves me a step.

If those journals allow authors to reuse their own figures, it's fine.

Hi Mariellen,

In a previous decision letter, I asked the author to provide permission for their 3 supplementary material documents (see attached).

In the response to reviewers, the author replied

The three images in the supplementary material are our own, since we are the creators of these three decision aids (Marc Probst for syncope, Erik Hess for chest pain, and Peter Noseworthy for atrial fibrillation). Thus, no outside permission should be needed.

What do you think?

Let me know,
Jennifer
