

A posttreatment with MAGL inhibitors significantly reduces brain damage and improves functional outcome, indicating that MAGL may represent an important target for neuroprotection in ischemic stroke.