

Income-related health disparities in chronic diseases and the role of health behaviors, Evidence from China

Qing Wang, Ph.D. ^{a,*}, Jay J. Shen, PhD ^b, Kaitlyn Frakes, B.S. ^c

^a School of business, Dalian University of Technology, Panjin, 124221, Liaoning, China.

Corresponding author. E-mail address, wangqing1984@126.com. Tel, 8618811795046.

^b Department of Health Care Administration and Policy, School of Community Health Sciences, University of Nevada Las Vegas. 4505 Maryland Parkway, Las Vegas, NV 89154-3023, USA. jay.shen@unlv.edu

^c Department of Health Care Administration and Policy, School of Community
Health Sciences, University of Nevada Las Vegas. 4505 Maryland Parkway, Las Vegas, NV 89154-3023, USA. frakek1@unlv.nevada.edu

Appendix table 1 Weighted prevalence of CVD and hypertension by income

Characteristics	High Income	Medium Income	Low Income
CVD	12.35	13.03	13.26
Hypertension	33.40	36.95	40.99