S1 Fig. Average (over samples, per probe) of log2 expression level, for all probes (grey), probes identified as differentially expressed between tumor and normal samples in mouse (blue), and the subset of those that are consistently differentially expressed across in all species (red). Boxplot width is proportional to the square root of the number of probes.