

Supporting information

Cyclodextrin-functionalized fiber yarns spun from deep eutectic cellulose solutions for non-specific hormone capture in aqueous matrices

Hannes Orelma^{a}, Tommi Virtanen^a, Steven Spoljaric^b, Jani Lehmonen^a, Jukka Seppälä^b, Orlando Rojas^c, Ali Harlin^a*

^aVTT Technical Research Centre of Finland Ltd, Biologinkuja 7, FI-02044 Espoo, Finland

^bAalto University, Department of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, Kemistintie 1, FI-02150, Espoo, Finland

^cAalto University, Departments of Bioproducts and Biosystems and Applied Physics, Vuorimiehentie 1, FI-02150, Espoo, Finland.

Contents

Figure S1. SEM images of fibre yarn before a) and after b) modification with chitosan adsorption. C) fibre yarn after cyclodextrin conjugation via chitosan adsorption by using EDC/NHS chemistry.3

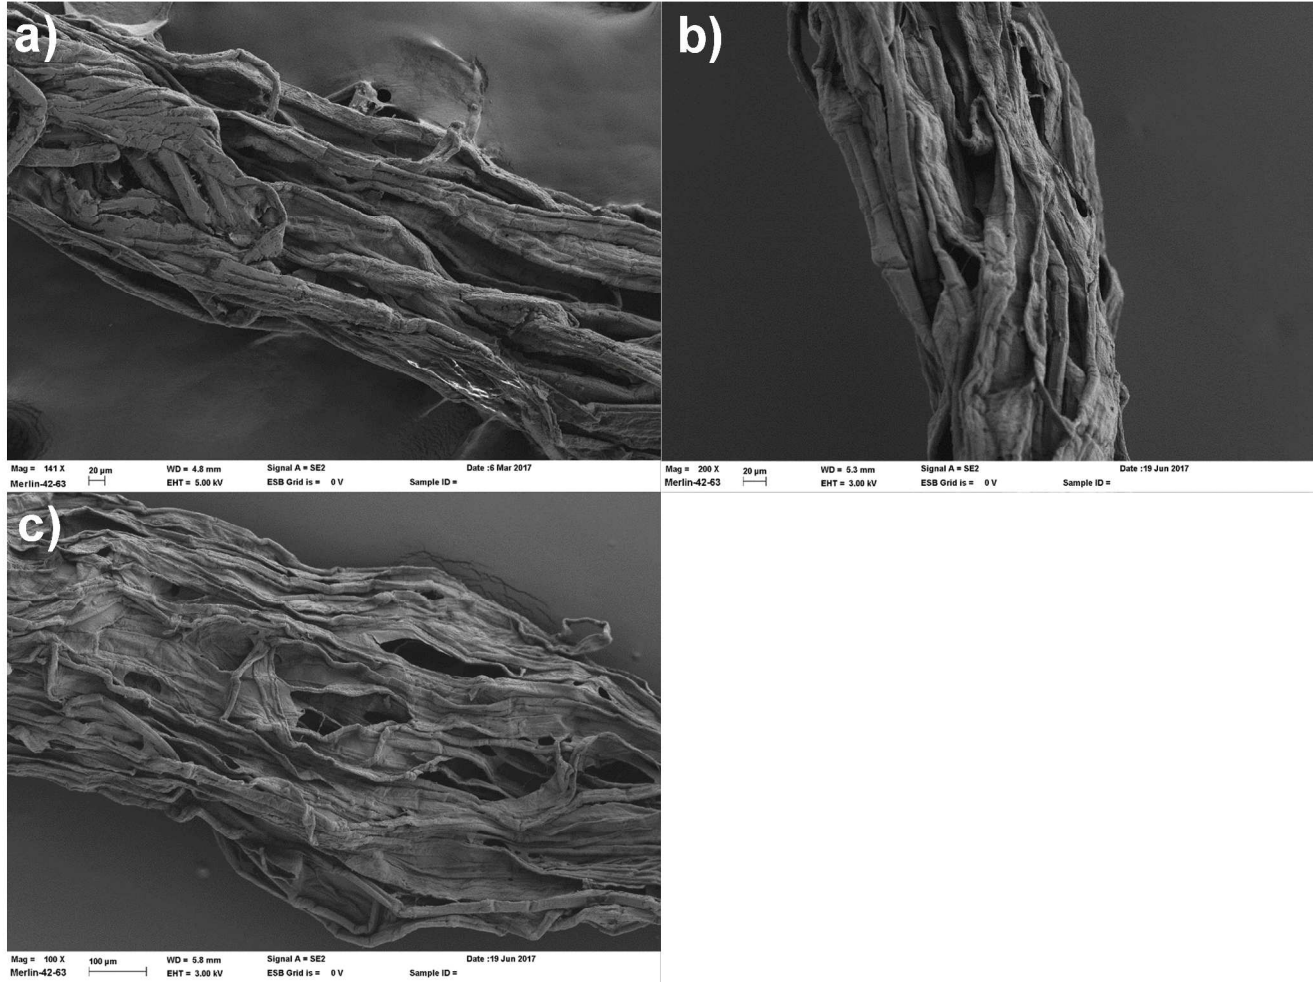

Figure S1. SEM images of fibre yarn before a) and after b) modification with chitosan adsorption. c) fibre yarn after cyclodextrin conjugation via chitosan adsorption by using EDC/NHS chemistry.