

Supplementary Materials 3 - Discussion questions

Patient Perspectives on Real-World Evidence (RWE)

- How do patients define RWE?
- Do they define it differently than other stakeholders?
- What questions do patients have about RWE and how it is used?
- Are there concerns about RWE? Are there “acceptable uses” versus “unacceptable uses” from the patient perspective?

Communicating Real-World Evidence to Patients

- How can RWE be effectively communicated to provide value to patients?
- What do patients need to know to trust RWE?
- What are the barriers and challenges?
- What characteristics does RWE need to have to enable patients to use it in their own decision-making?
- What characteristics does RWE need to have to allow patients to feel comfortable for others (e.g., clinical practice guideline groups, payers, regulators, etc.) to use it in their decision-making? For themselves to use it?
