

Supplementary Figure 7. Propriospinal myoclonus (PSM) with a secondary cause. EMG recording from a case of PSM induced by ciprofloxacin. The duration of the EMG burst varies from 80 to 400 ms. The dashed line indicates a rostral and caudal order of recruitment starting in the rectus abdominis muscle. The orbicularis oculi muscle was not involved in the jerks. Adapted from Post et al.⁵⁴