

Supplementary Information

Serum metabolite profiles as potential biochemical markers in young adults with community acquired pneumonia cured by moxifloxacin therapy.

Bo Zhou¹, Bowen Lou^{2,4}, Junhui Liu^{3#}, Jianqing She^{2,4#}

¹Respiratory and critical care medicine, First Affiliated Hospital of Medical College, Xi'an Jiaotong University, Xi'an, 710048

²Cardiology Department, First Affiliated Hospital of Medical College, Xi'an Jiaotong University, Xi'an, 710048

³ Diagnostic Department, First Affiliated Hospital of Medical College, Xi'an Jiaotong University, Xi'an, 710048

⁴ Key Laboratory of Environment and Genes Related to Diseases, Ministry of Education, Xi'an 710048

*To whom correspondence should be addressed:

Jianqing She, E-mail: jianqingshe@xjtu.edu.cn,

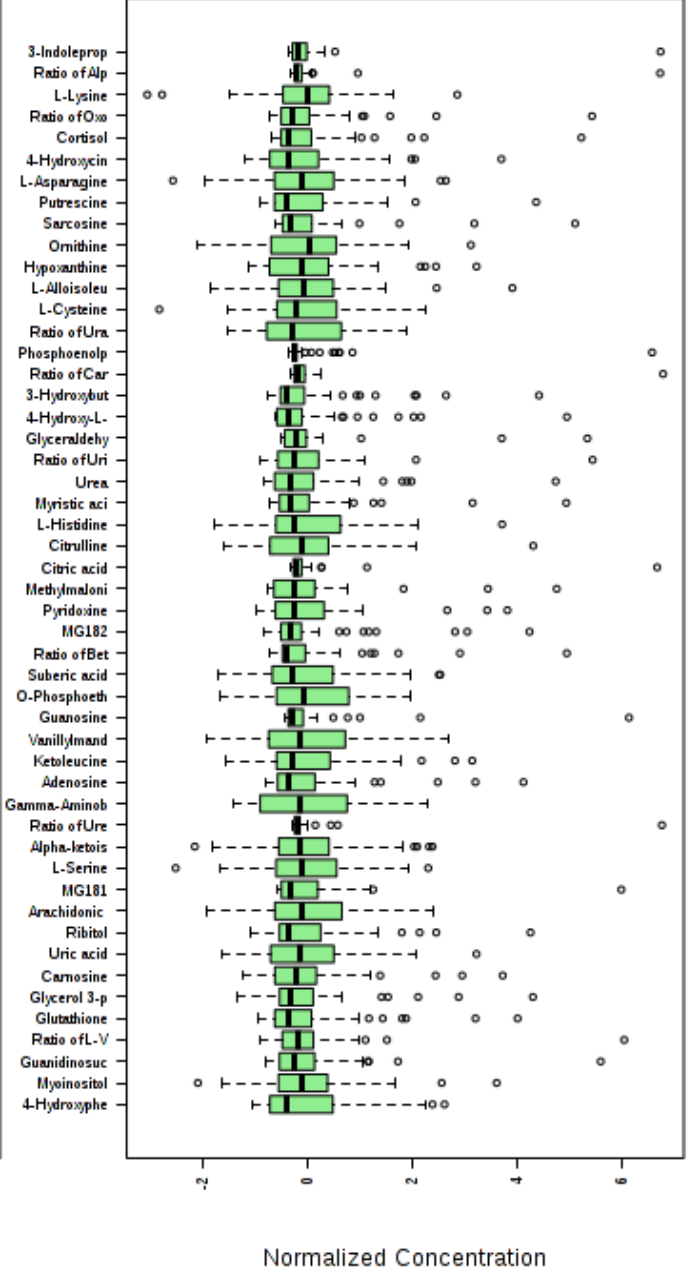

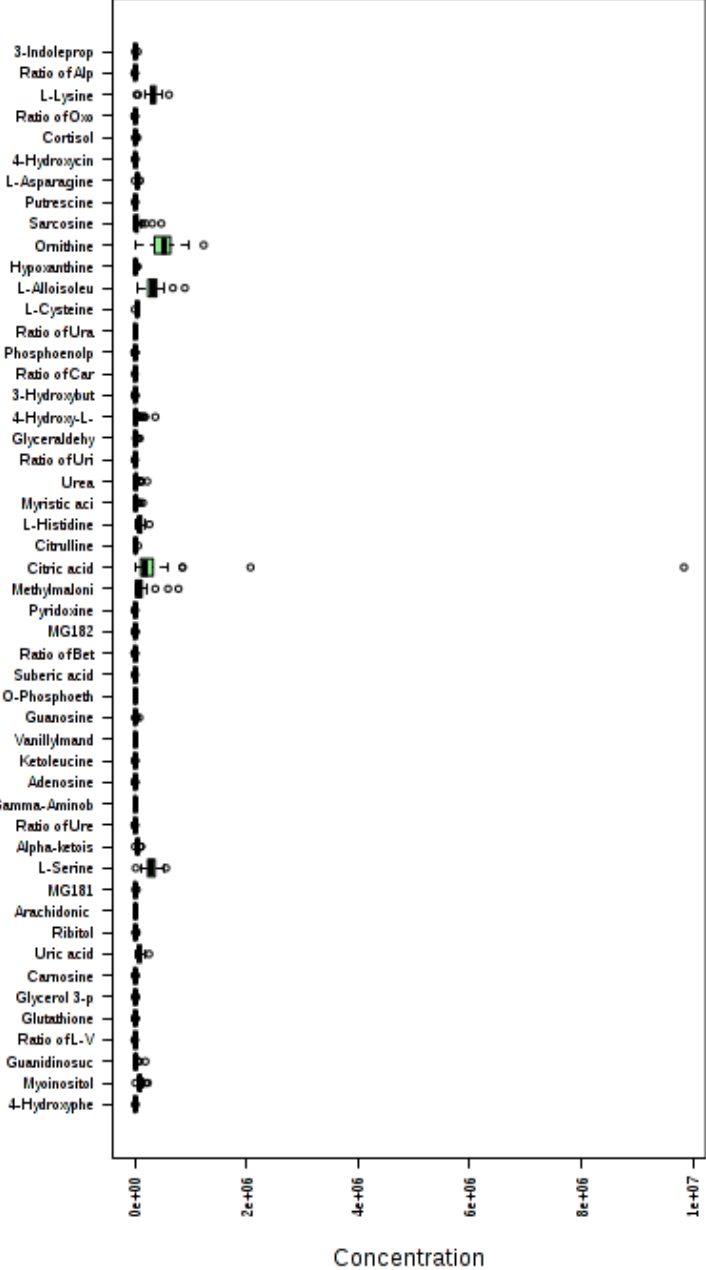

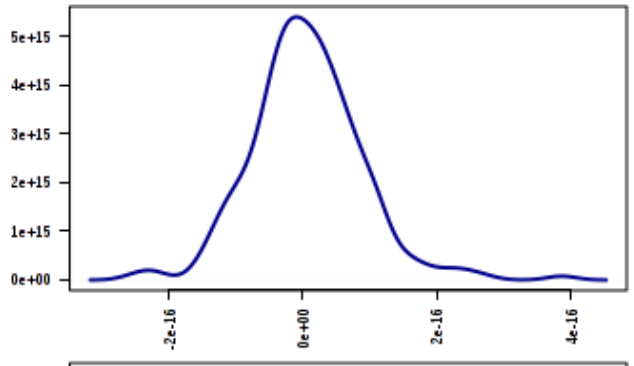

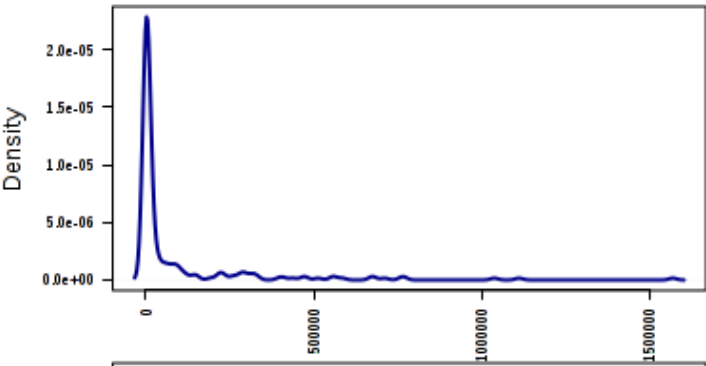

Junhui Liu, E-mail: liu1109@xjtu.edu.cn;

Supplementary Figure1: Data normalization.

A.

Before Normalization

After Normalization

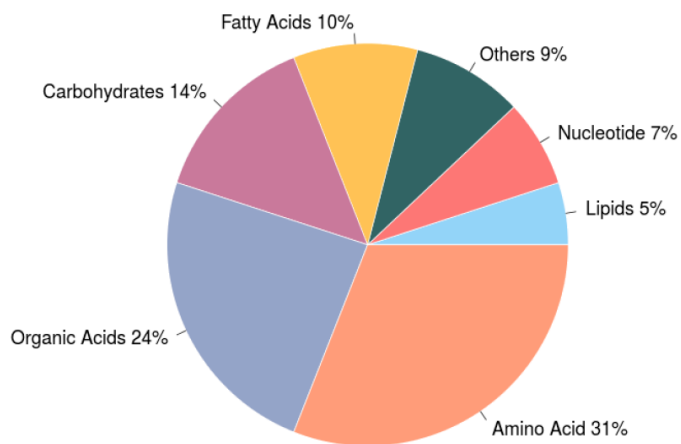

Concentration

Normalized Concentration

Supplementary Figure2: Heatmap showing metabolites classes in young CAP as compare to control.

A.

B.

