

Supplementary Figure 2. Permutation test for comparing kurtosis, second order raw moment and the median between distributions. Grey line represents the observed absolute difference delta for each statistic. Blue delta random distributions are generated from 1,000 random surrogates (see Methods). Significance (P value) is considered as the proportion of observed delta values higher than those of the random surrogates. A complete node list can be found in Supplementary Table S1.