

Figure S1. The flea gut. The bright-field microscopy image shows part of the insect's digestive tract. The esophagus (E), the proventriculus (PV; brown) and the midgut (MG) are clearly visible. The proventriculus is a valve covered with inward-facing spines, and autofluoresces in green.