

Supplementary Figure 1. TMA cores are embedded in a spleen tissue in order to provide a large lymphoid organ base as a positive and negative control for immune cell markers. Spleen or tonsil as a base tissue provides a solid environment for integration of the cores while also providing a large lymphoid organ geography for control immune markers.