S6 Figure. Principal component analysis and hierarchical clustering heatmap analysis shows that four blood miRNAs, associated with inflammation, help identify the majority of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease [COPD] patients from healthy controls (GSE31568).