Supplemental Figure 1: Expression of Notch and Notch ligands in NVR mouse at E18.5. Immunohistochemistry was performed for Notch1, Notch 2, Notch 4, HES1, DDL4 and JAGGED1 in the TMJ condyles of CBF:H2B-Venus reporter mouse strain (NVR) at E18.5.

Supplemental Figure 2: Generation of fibrocartilage stem cell (FCSC) line with ligand independent constitutively activated Notch. (a) PCR analysis following enzymatic restriction digest confirming Notch intracellular domain (NICD) in bacterial colonies. Lane 3 represents positive NICD colony. (b) Rat FCSCs following 48hrs transduction with GFP NCID plasmid lentivirus.

Supplemental Figure 3: Expression of Notch receptors are increased in TNF-alpha induced TMJ arthritis mouse model. (a) TNF-alpha was injected unilaterally into the TMJ intra-articular space of 6 week-old mice twice 3 days apart to induce inflammatory TMJ arthritis, while saline was injected into the contralateral TMJ as a control. TMJ condyles were examined by immunohistochemistry after 2 and 14 days. (b) Immunohistochemistry was performed for Notch1, Notch 2 and Notch 4 in TMJ condyles following exposure to saline control and TNF-alpha.

induced TMJ arthritis mouse model. (a) TNF-alpha was injected unilaterally into the TMJ intra-articular space of 6 week-old mice twice 3 days apart to induce inflammatory TMJ arthritis, while saline was injected into the contralateral TMJ as a control. TMJ condyles were examined by immunohistochemistry after 2 and 14 days. (b)

Immunohistochemistry was performed for DLL4, JAGGED1 and HES1 in TMJ condyles following exposure to saline control and TNF-alpha.
