

Data Sharing Statement

Cree. Efficacy and Safety of 2 Fingolimod Doses vs Glatiramer Acetate for the Treatment of Patients With Relapsing-Remitting Multiple Sclerosis. JAMA Neurol. Published August 24, 2020. 10.1001/jamaneurol.2020.2950

Data

Data available: Yes

Data types: Deidentified participant data

How to access data: Anonymized data from the study are available on reasonable request from the authors, provided that it is in line with current ethical and intellectual property requirements surrounding the use of data. Requests should be directed to the corresponding author by email. Bruce.Cree@UCSF.edu

When available: With publication

Supporting Documents

Document types: None

Additional Information

Who can access the data: Anonymized data from the study are available on reasonable request from the authors, provided that it is in line with current ethical and intellectual property requirements surrounding the use of data. Requests should be directed to the corresponding author by email. Bruce.Cree@UCSF.edu

Types of analyses: Anonymized data from the study are available on reasonable request from the authors, provided that it is in line with current ethical and intellectual property requirements surrounding the use of data. Requests should be directed to the corresponding author by email. Bruce.Cree@UCSF.edu

Mechanisms of data availability: Anonymized data from the study are available on reasonable request from the authors, provided that it is in line with current ethical and intellectual property requirements surrounding the use of data. Requests should be directed to the corresponding author by email. Bruce.Cree@UCSF.edu