

Supplementary Figure 3 The diffusion coefficient is calculated as the linear fit of the ratio between squared displacement and time. The plot is an example of this computing the diffusion coefficient as the slope of the linear relationship between squared displacement and time for a single vesicle track.