

Exploring the contextual transition from spinal cord injury rehabilitation to the home environment: a qualitative study

Author information:

Lene Weber, Nanna Hoffgaard Voldsgaard, Nicolaj Jersild Holm, Lone Helle Schou, Fin Biering-Sørensen, Tom Møller

Supplemental material (S1) presents the complete interview guide, which also represents the initial template.

Supplemental material (S1) Interview guide

| A priori themes                          | Codes  | Examples of open-ended questions  |
|--|--|---|
| The individual story                     | Story of the SCI                               | Tell me about yourself and why you were admitted to the SCI unit?                         |
| Experience of specialized rehabilitation | Acquisition of skills                          | Were any parts of the rehabilitation particularly meaningful to you?                      |
|  | Goals and motivation                           | What goals did you set for your rehabilitation?What motivated you?                    |
|  | Weekend leave                                  | How did you experience weekend leave?   |
|  | Discharge                                      | How did you prepare for discharge?  |
| Experience of everyday life              | Transitioning home                             | Can you tell me about your everyday life?   |
|  | Applying skills                                | How do you apply the skills you learned at the SCI unit now that you are at home?         |
|  | Lifestyle                                      | What thoughts do you have about healthy living? How does it unfold in your everyday life? |
|  | Impact of SCI (physical, emotional and social) | How has the SCI affected your relationship with family and friends?                       |
|  | Structural support                             | How do you experience the collaboration with your municipality?                           |
|  | Future   | What thoughts do you have about the future?   |

Abbreviation: SCI, spinal cord injury

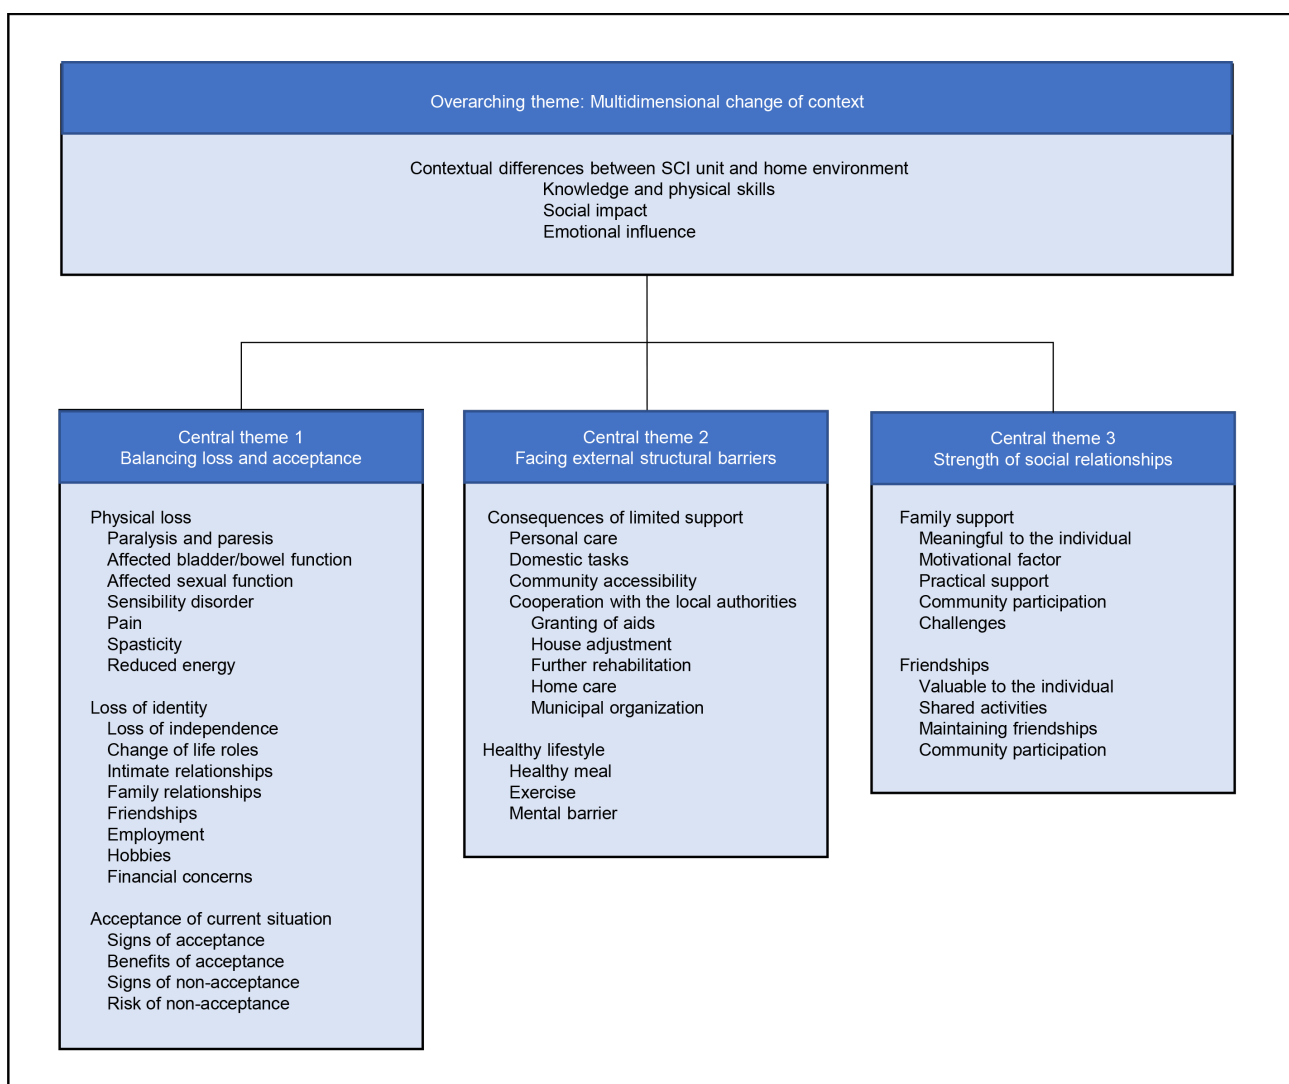

Exploring the contextual transition from spinal cord injury rehabilitation to the home environment: a qualitative study

Author information:

Lene Weber, Nanna Hoffgaard Voldsgaard, Nicolaj Jersild Holm, Lone Helle Schou, Fin Biering-Sørensen, Tom Møller

Supplemental material (S2) presents the final template, which is based on the systematic text analysis as the underlying foundation of the illustration in Fig. 2.

Supplemental material (S2) Final template

Abbreviation: SCI, spinal cord injury