

Occupational Burnout and Job Satisfaction Among Physicians in Times of COVID-19 Crisis: A Convergent Parallel Mixed-Method Study

Dear respected medical doctors in Jordan ,

We hope that you are all safe and in a perfect health.

We would like to provide our extreme appreciation to you and to all healthcare professionals for your immense efforts and sacrifices in fighting the COVID-19 pandemic and working during this extraordinary situation.

We are inviting you to participate in this web-based cross-sectional survey which investigates occupational burnout and job satisfaction among physicians in times of the COVID-19 pandemic in Jordan. This survey is part of a broader mixed-method research study. The survey questionnaire consists of 3 sections with a total of 32 questions (apart from this introductory section). Based on pilot testing , questionnaire requires an average of 7 minutes to be completed. To be eligible to participate in this survey study , you have to be fulfil the following inclusion criteria (both) :

1- Being a medical doctor of any specialty (Medical or Surgical) and of any professional rank (General Practitioner , Resident, Specialist or Consultant) .

2- Practicing your career in Jordan during the COVID-19 pandemic ,whether as frontline or not

Your participation is completely voluntary and you can withdraw at any point of participation without providing reasons . The questionnaire does not require any personal information; thus, your identity is anonymous and the collected data will be stored securely and only used for research purposes . You are kindly requested to read the questions carefully , to answer all items, and to submit it only once. You can share the link of this survey with your workmates who are medical doctors in Jordan as well.

Our research project was approved by ethics committee at Faculty of Medicine , Mutah University (Ref# 1112020).We appreciate your valuable and precious contribution and participation that will let us as health researchers to get a comprehensive overview of this topic , considering that findings are expected to provide managers and decision makers of the health sector in Jordan with important scientific insights into the current situation of medical practice amid COVID-19 pandemic .
