Suppl. Constitution of an interdisciplinary project group

When constituting a project group it was sought to cover different disciplines and varying levels of experience. The focus group consisted of

- two members of the dean's office (in detail the head of the department for curriculum development and one senior research associate working in the field of capacity and evaluation)
- one senior research associate of the institute for medical informatics
- one junior physician
- one senior physician (anesthetist)
- and one medical student.
