

Supplemental Figure 2. There was no change in the percent of patients who undergo wide resection by year.

A Kendall's tau-b correlation was performed to determine trends in the percent of patients with a long bone atypical cartilaginous tumor who underwent wide resection procedures performed between 2004 and 2016. There was no statistically significant change in percent of patients who underwent wide resection ($p = 0.530$).