

Survey of the role and response of primary healthcare services in the delivery of palliative and end-of-life care during COVID-19

Thank you for agreeing to take part in this survey. The aim of this study is to capture and learn from the experiences of general practitioners (GPs) and community nurses in the delivery of end-of-life care in the community through the COVID-19 pandemic. There has been almost no research in this area during past pandemics.

Please complete the survey as soon as possible so that we can analyse and share the results. The survey will close on 30th September.

Throughout the survey, "palliative care" is defined as an approach to care focussed on improving quality of life for people affected by life-threatening conditions, by early identification and management of physical, psychological, social and spiritual concerns (World Health Organisation), rather than as a specialist service. Specialist services are specifically referred to as Specialist Palliative Care services and hospice services.

The questionnaire will take 15-20 minutes to complete

There are five short sections, followed by a section for longer free text answers. No questions are compulsory. Thank you very much for taking part.
