Supplementary Figure 5: Examples of synthetic images created from our initial experiments with multi-scale gradients Generative Adversarial Network (GAN). Rows represent the class and columns represent different noise vectors used to generate the image. While the images were of reasonable quality, the GAN was not able to reproduce the diversity of the training set.